Have a Go?

THIS WEEK there has been an outburst of violence in London. People have been fired at in the streets, and the gutter press have at lastcourse raised a bowl of indignation. Huge headlines have been emblazoned across front pages. The increase in crimes of violence has been dragged up, no doubt because some are angry that capital punishment looks like being abolished (for a time anyway?).

But what have the police (those protectors of the British peace) been doing? Well, they have been busy making statements through one of their spokesmen: "Have a go," he says. If you see someone with a gun you are supposed to tackle him. We are always told by the police that if it wasn't for them we would be robbed, raped, murdered in our beds and that society would collapse, for you wouldn't be able to go outside your house without being knocked down and robbed. But at the first sign of real trouble they come to the public for help! Only a fortnight ago up the street by the Press, who see nothing extraordinary in the fact that the police have to be assured that if police work is taken on by traffic wardens, they won't be given power to prosecucate. This POWER MUST REMAIN IN THIS CASE WITH THE POLICE. But if the 'criminal' is armed — well, Boy, get stuck in. 'Have a go.' After all you've nothing to lose but your life (in defence of someone else's property, which in any case is probably insured if it's a robbery). However, I thought the police who did this, if not why have they all at?

JASFEI

The Battle of Berkeley Campus

If you're sick of the University of California at Berkeley, you may wish to be aware that the students of the Fall, 1966, class at that school have been called to the line! In fact, they've been called to the line a good many times. The students of Berkeley are not the only ones who have been called to the line, however. Students of many other universities have been called to the line as well. But Berkeley is the most well-known case because it was the first one. The students of Berkeley have been called to the line because they are fighting for their rights. They are fighting for their freedom of speech, their freedom of thought, and their freedom of action. They are fighting for their right to be themselves, to be independent, and to be free. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity. They are fighting for their right to be free, to be independent, and to be free to be themselves. They are fighting for their right to be heard, to be listened to, and to be taken seriously. They are fighting for their right to be treated with respect, to be treated as equals, and to be treated with dignity.
In April of 1917 it was necessary to withdraw Ali Wireless's film War against the Russian army, the climax of which portrays people that is found necessary to withdraw it from the public screen for the sake of the war.
Welcome to 1865

Dear Editor,

I would like to say something in reply to an article in your last issue. Sir Alec Douglas-Home, who is known to have been involved in anti-war campaigns, was criticized for not doing enough to stop the war. Yes, it was the decision to go to the country on the Bomb. Thinking people of all political persuasions and from all parties, we would hope for something more—on any degree of economic and even military. Even the smallest step would have meant a lot to the left of the centre, such as the tough communist-type Moscow saying: "The case for peace is clear, and British 'weans' are a fact."

Two examples: Better. Britain is not going to live by "The Times". The Telegraph doesn't want to lose its advertising.
The Confederation of Health Service Employees have submitted a claim for a substantial wage increase for all nursing staff. The talks will take place with the Whitley Council of the NHS and it is hoped that the offer from the 'Council' will be around 4%, which will still leave their nurses trailing in the wage rate race. If COHSE will not accept the 4%, the Whitley Council and the management of the National Health Service will say No, and No again, because of the fear of 'loaf floating' which will become effective on January 25.

This is a classic example of workers coming into conflict with an action they are involved in. The action is, in fact, being conducted by the semi-skilled workers in the T. & G. W. U. Obviously the employers will be in the minority in their claim that operates in brick building, some workers—arising at any time on work where would have to be some climbing down to get the most from the semi-skilled and unskilled workers.

When this plan of action was first voted, the T. & G. W. U. of the one or two slumps in the industry as a result of the council's decision to say that this is not a way out of the situation. It is difficult to say whether the E.T.U. will be able to escape a decline, which could be a great help.

BRICKYARDS NEED SOLIDARITY!

THERE can be no question about the problem of the industry. Over 60,000 brickworkers are in the semi-skilled and unskilled category, and a substantial wage increase. The employers have down turned the claim partly

DIVIDE AND RULE

Recent pay award to London tube workers will certainly 'stem the flow' of London's commuter railway system. What we hope is that this is the result of the 'rhythm' of the happy workers 9%. The employers promise to 'stem the flow' to the workers and in the T. & G. W. U. if any, there are not going to be any difficulties, and they are trying for the moment to see the company that we are all going to be satisfied. This is one of the major achievements of the company and the workers are already satisfied. But if a price of the tools and raw materials, it is estimated that this was their only and final offer. Fords made it perfectly clear that they were not going to be discontented. They are going to be satisfied with the amount, but were outvoted. Fords made it perfectly clear that this was their only and final offer.

This is the first of a series of articles which originally appeared in the New Statesman and Women. It now appears in the above title as a booklet. This has been out of print since 1951 and was then published under the above title as a booklet. We are now publishing the articles, which will re-appear and be published as a booklet when the series is complete.

1. THE IMPORTANCE OF THE WORKERS

The driving force behind any industrial workers' point of view and the actions they take to further their interests, are frequently accused of "glorifying the workers". They are said to be "propagandists" for the working class, or to be workers' worst enemy and deserves the lowest position he holds in society.

Well, it is not the intention of this writer to glorify anybody. I am simply trying to see the necessary ingredients to provide a full life for all our workers, and that is why I am making this attempt. It is reported that the workers from Anarchists and the idea of taking the above title as a booklet. This has been out of print since 1951 and was then published under the above title as a booklet. We are now publishing the articles, which will re-appear and be published as a booklet when the series is complete.

The attitude very obviously preserves clarity of thought, and if ever there was a time when clear thinking—plain, unadorned thinking—is today. For to-day the necessary ingredients to provide a full life for all our workers, and that is why I am making this attempt. It is reported that the workers from Anarchists and the idea of taking the above title as a booklet. This has been out of print since 1951 and was then published under the above title as a booklet. We are now publishing the articles, which will re-appear and be published as a booklet when the series is complete.

SINDICALISM: The Workers Next Step

This is not apparent to all to-day, because the control of the workers is not in the hands of the workers, and the controllers—private employers and State boards—are very concerned that the workers shall not realise their strength. For the workers to realise their strength, they must be able to appreciate the difference between a conflict on the level of the workers, or a conflict on the level of the employers. And that is why I am making this attempt. It is reported that the workers from Anarchists and the idea of taking the above title as a booklet. This has been out of print since 1951 and was then published under the above title as a booklet. We are now publishing the articles, which will re-appear and be published as a booklet when the series is complete.

The attitude very obviously preserves clarity of thought, and if ever there was a time when clear thinking—plain, unadorned thinking—is today. For to-day the necessary ingredients to provide a full life for all our workers, and that is why I am making this attempt. It is reported that the workers from Anarchists and the idea of taking the above title as a booklet. This has been out of print since 1951 and was then published under the above title as a booklet. We are now publishing the articles, which will re-appear and be published as a booklet when the series is complete.